

CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION

Before the Capitol building, sidewalk space awaits a new coating of cement

Concrete swings into place in the shadow of the Washington Monument

Washington, D.C., according to the many tourists who visit our nation's capital, is a city of spectacular views and stirring monuments. Like many large cities, however, it is an ever-changing product of American planning and dreaming. Even as the work-day procedures roll on within the Capitol building, changes are in progress to re-do the city's face and make it more impressive.

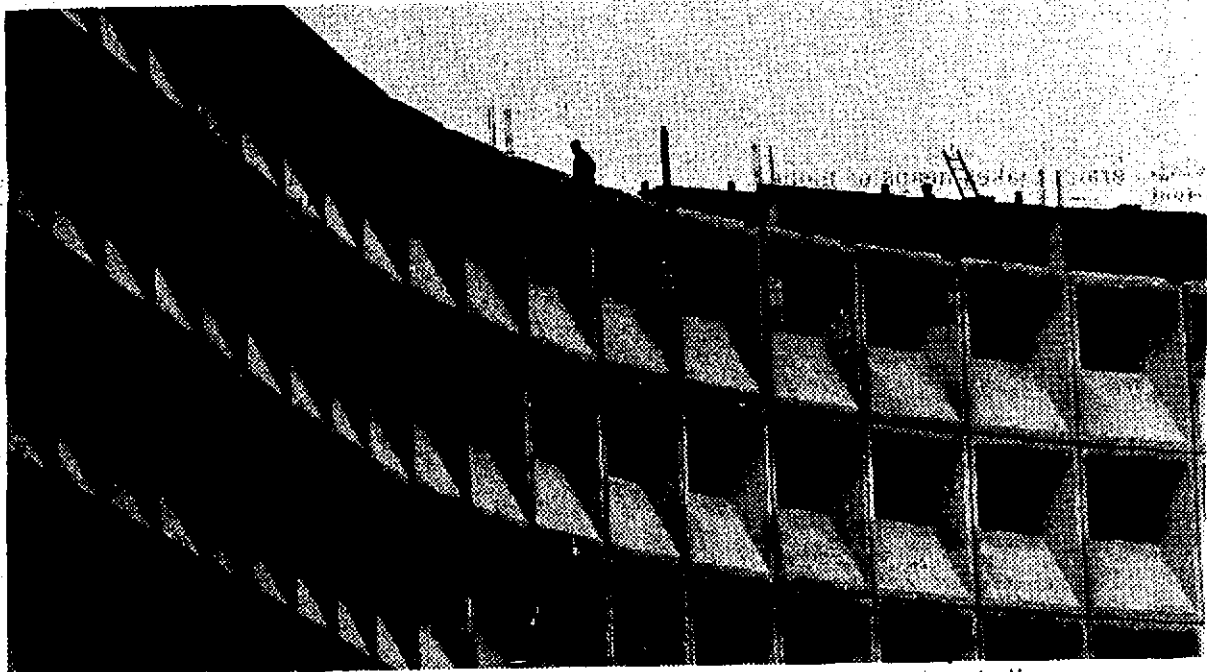

Roads are re-routed, ripped up, removed and rebuilt; new layers of concrete are spread to support buildings soon to rise from vacant lots; older buildings topple and new patterns reach skyward in their place; heavy-duty trucks rumble back and forth throughout the city, carrying out the old and trundling in the new. Electronic equipment as advanced as our technology coordinates the movement of the mightiest materials high above the skyline.

Through this hustle, then, move the politicians and citizens of the city, maintaining its operation as the heartbeat of America. With patience they step over, through or around newly-erected barriers and walkways as they come from far corners of the capital to their work. Tourists, impatient to get "that one" picture, need only come back hours later, for by then construction will have moved onward.

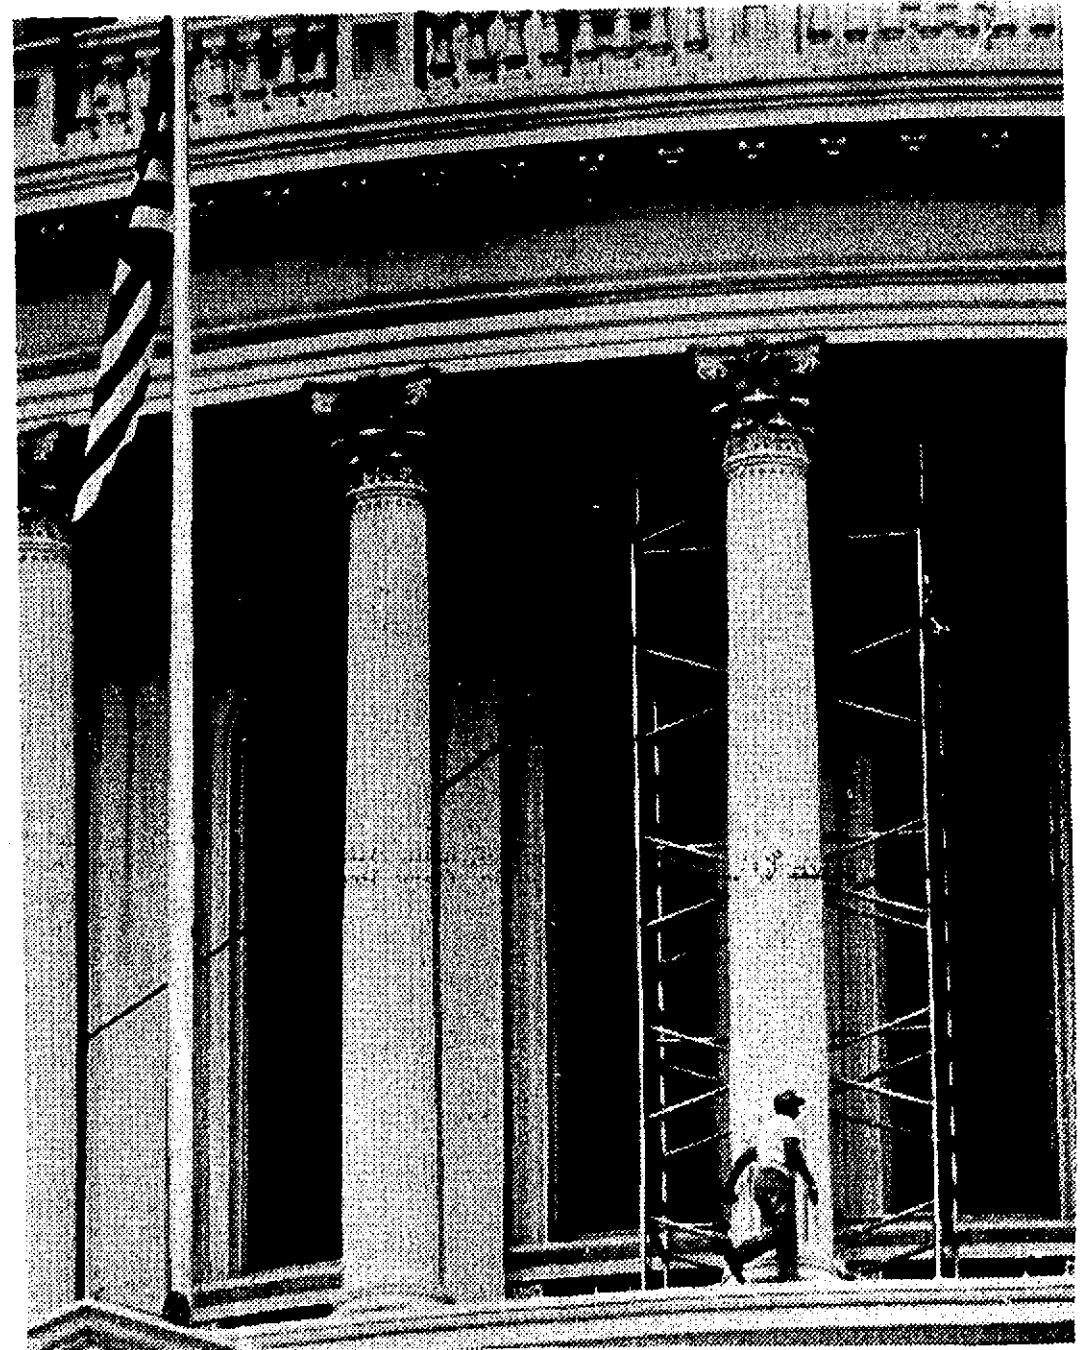

Summertime for the capital means travel time. In spite of the visitor crush and the city construction, the day-by-day work of maintaining the city continues unbroken.

It will remain a city of spectacular views and stirring monuments, yet now in every corner it is keeping pace with the dreams and hopes of its builders for tomorrow.

Uruguay Strikers Back at Work

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Some 200,000 striking government workers went back to work Thursday and the government withdrew guard troops under a temporary truce, but new floods further aggravated Uruguay's economic crisis.

Talks began behind closed doors on the workers' demand for a 40 per cent pay raise to offset a similar rise in the cost of living. The government has said it cannot pay it. The workers man a wide variety of services.

Treasury Minister Amicar Vasconcellos estimated a six-month cycle of drought, frost and flood has caused $250 million in damage already. He called it the nation's worst disaster in a decade.

MRS. CHARLES TILMON, JR.

Miss Cecilia Ann Cox and Charles Erbie Tilmon, Jr., exchanged wedding vows in a garden setting at 8:00 o'clock Friday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Cecil Cox, on Highway three fifty-five north, Fulton, Arkansas. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erbie Tilmon, Sr. of Texarkana, Ark.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph Hillis, pastor of First Methodist Church, Texarkana, Ark., officiated for the impressive double ring ceremony.

Background for the ceremony included an improvised altar with an arch decorated with huckleberry and lemon foliage, and with a fan shaped arrangement of votive lights and flanked on each side by spiral candelabra holding crystal votive lamps and two seven-branched candelabras holding cathedral candles. Urns of white gladioli, stock and majestic daisies placed on white columns completed the altar arrangement.

The walkway, by which the bridal procession approached the altar, was outlined with crushed white marble and hurricane lamps adorned with majestic daisies, lemon leaf and white satin bows.

Mrs. Otis A. Blackwood presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Kenneth Haley, baritone soloist, who sang "More" (Ciorcolini) and "All for You" (Bertrand-Brown), following the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer" (Malotte) was sung as a benediction while the couple knelt on a satin covered prie d'ieu.

Candles were lighted at the beginning of the ceremony by William Kenneth Cox and James Michael Cox, brothers of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of chantilly lace, veiling a silhouette of silk peau de soie. The moded cage gown was fashioned with a scalloped neckline encrusted with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The bell-sleeved bodice was complemented by short white kid gloves. The slim controlled skirt, enhanced at the hemline with a banding of chantilly lace scallops, was complemented by a full court train of double illusion. The train, attached at the shoulders with silk organza bows, was covered with appliques of lace and scattered iridescent sequins with a double border of chantilly lace. Her shoulder length veil trimmed with scallops of lace fell from an open crown of seed pearls and aurora borealis crystals. She carried a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids atop a white Bible.

Mrs. E. Glen Clark of Dallas, Texas, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Benny C. Downing, Hutto, Texas, and Mrs. Alfred A. Tension, Jr. of Texarkana, Ark., sister of the bridegroom. The attendants wore identical gowns of American Beauty red silk peau de soie fashioned with an empire bodice and low rounded neckline, and A-line overskirt. They wore picture hats of pink tulle enhanced by fuchsia satin streamers, and carried bouquets of fuchsia asters in a Victorian design.

Immediately preceding the bride was Miss Stephanie Michelle Britt, flower girl and cousin of the bride. She carried a white wicker basket and scattered rose petals. Miss Mary Tension, niece of the bridegroom, was the trainbearer. She and Miss Britt wore identical gowns of white silk peau de soie designed with chantilly lace yokes, jewel necklines and bell-shaped sleeves. They wore picture hats and wristlets of pink sweetheart roses.

Ringbearer was Master Alfred A. Tension III, nephew of the bridegroom, who carried the rings on a white satin pillow trimmed with chantilly lace and lilies of the valley.

Charles Erbie Tilmon Sr. served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Harold Baer of Little Rock, Ark., and Edward Miller of Texarkana, Ark. Ushers were Roy Baskett, Jr., Alfred A. Tension, Jr. of Texarkana, Ark., Robert Keenan of Dardanelle, Ark., and Otis W. (Buddy) Blackwood and William L. Varner.

Mrs. Cox chose for her daughter's wedding a bone Italian silk semi-fitted dress with bateau neckline and a deep border of lace at the hemline. A coat of lace completed the ensemble. Her accessories were to match with a small hat of bone feathers and veiling. Completing her outfit was a cymbidium orchid in brown tones.

Mrs. Tilmon was attired in a powder blue crepe dress with a matching lace jacket. Her accessories were in the same color, and she wore a white camellia corsage.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cox were hosts for a reception which was held in their home and garden. Large urns of green plants and massive arrangements of gladioli, majestic daisies and roses enhanced the setting. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Otis A. Blackwood and introduced to the receiving line which included Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Tilmon, the honored couple and the wedding party.

The bride's table was covered in a floor length cloth of white organza over pink satin, and was centered with a silver epergne holding white stock, white majestics, gypsophelia, yellow roses and agapanthus, and white burning tapers. A four-tier wedding cake lavishly decorated with spun sugar roses and lilies of the valley and topped with white wedding bells was served by Mrs. Nancy Morrison and Mrs. Roy Baskett, Jr. Punch, floating with an ice ring decorated with mint leaves and cherries was served by Mrs. Sam Dean and Mrs. Roy Gene Britt.

The groom's table was covered with an ecru lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow roses. Serving mock champagne and cake were Mrs. Edward Miller of Texarkana, Ark., and Mrs. James T. Rowland. All appointments were silver.

Punch refills were available from a flowing fountain beside the groom's table.

Mrs. William L. Varner presided at the registry, which held the bride's book, an arrangement of pink carnations, gypsophelia, and memory candle.

Misses Kathy and Tina Walden and Karen Rowland, distributed white net rice bags tied with shower ribbons of American Beauty red. Others dispensing hospitality were Mrs. Charles Wylie of Monroe, La., Mrs. Herbert Cox, Mrs. Earlene White, Mrs. Claude H. Wilson, Mrs. Robert White and Mrs. Earl White.

For her wedding trip to New Orleans, Louisiana, Mrs. Tilmon wore a brown and white crepe tent dress with three-quarter bell-shaped sleeves. Her accessories were brown. She pinned a white orchid corsage at her shoulder. Upon their return, the couple will be at home east of Texarkana on Highway 82.

Return of Shirtwaist

The shirtwaist has done it again. This time it returns with the look of an Edwardian dandy. The collars are broadened but softer, sleeves longer, often ruffled and belted. Belts define the waistline but there are a few available in button-all-the-way-down shift style.

Television and SHOWBEAT Radio

By DOUG MCCLURE
For Cynthia Lowry
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A couple of questions caused me to stop and take inventory. While I'm not jumping with joy over what I have noted, the record does indicate progress to me.

If I say I'm not content, it indicates to a degree that I don't think much of my present role of Trampas in "The Virginian." This could not be farther from the truth since I am very happy in the role and feel that I have an opportunity to continue to improve as an actor.

And, of course, if I say that I am content to go along the route I'm on, one might set the impression that I lack ambition. This also is untrue.

It seems to me that I am growing as an actor and that I am consistently going upward and I don't see the top of the ladder anywhere in sight right now.

Admitted that much of this business is a matter of images, it also has dignity, honor and integrity. And it requires years of hard work.

I note that my career route has been from commercials to guest-star or guest roles, to television series star billings. In addition, I have moved into motion pictures.

First I was the easy-going all-American type. Then I became the young sophisticated type in "Cheekmate." Then the rugged cowboy type. Now I think I have achieved another level, Doug McClure, the actor type.

I always wanted to keep working, and that certainly has been the case. I hoped to go from television to motion pictures, and that has happened. I wanted to go into motion pictures so I could expand my acting and do a variety of roles. This also is happening.

In one with James Stewart I played a young Civil War soldier. In another I was the hero's young brother who got killed. In another I was a World War II GI who escaped from the Japanese. I've done comedy in two films that will be released this year.

I keep looking for mature roles, and I am sure they will come along. As you mature as an actor, I think you also mature as a human being. Things that seemed important 10 years ago to my career certainly don't take on the same perspective today, like Hollywood functions, premieres, parties and such.

Pals: Omar Sharif And King Hussein

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

FOOTLOOSE AND FANCY FREEWAY—

There are those, supposedly in the know, who insist that Barbra Streisand has had a slight nose redecorating job done before she faces the close-up camera for "Funny Girl."

"Valley of the Dolls" may have some problems getting a code seal because of some language used. Omar Sharif went to school with Jordan's King Hussein, and the king still calls the actor "Captain," his school title. During the off-season, Peter Breck made his night club bow and was a hit, so an episode of The Big Valley will be written for him, giving him a chance to sing. Frank Sinatra is planning a sequel to "Tony Rome," again using Miami Beach as the location—giving Frank a chance to double into one of Miami Beach's big hotels.

Telly Savalas, now shooting "Mackenna's Gold," turned down a big offer because the part required him to have a healthy head of hair. And Telly says he'll never again appear without his bold baldness.

"For a guy who used to think $200 was a lot of money," Telly says, "it was a big thrill to turn down that offer."

The history of Telly's hairless top is interesting. He had hair like everyone else when George Stevens approached him to play Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Stevens suggested he shave his head.

"I was afraid what my kids might think," Telly says. "So Stevens said, 'Let them watch it being shaved off, then it won't be so traumatic.' To do that meant halting production for a day—costing maybe $50,000. But we did it, and my kids came in and watched. They didn't say a word."

Shooting "Madigan" on Universal's back lot, there was a scene in which Henry Fonda, Richard Widmark and Harry Guardino were involved in a killing. Playing the murdered policeman was a character actor named Lloyd Haynes, who had to lie on the ground. And it was a very cold night.

After more than an hour on the ground, Haynes asked director Don Siegel, "Do you care what kind of a corpse I play?"

"What did you have in mind?" Siegel asked.

"I think maybe my performance could be more unmoving," Haynes said, "if I was a four-blanket corpse instead of a two."

Something new in show business is the College Coffeehouse Circuit, under the guidance of Fred Weintraub. He's a newly transplanted New Yorker, who runs a night club (The Bitter End) and a restaurant (The Tin Angel) in New York, manages performers (The Four Seasons, The Serendipity Singers), publishes music, produces records and generally makes heaps of money.

"The fun in this business," Weintraub says, "is developing new talent. Once they get to be stars, they can be hard to handle."

He had an idea for more new talent, hence more fun. He realized that "the biggest money in today's show business comes from the college concert circuit," so he decided to explore that area.

Weintraub put together a circuit of college "coffeehouses"—generally a corner of the student union building—where young acts perform. The colleges pay from $150 to $200 a week, give the act room and board. In return, the act plays every night and talks to the students at seminars.

There are now 41 colleges in the circuit and, when school starts again next September, a lot of new talent will be getting a chance to work steadily and gain valuable experience.

Irving Wallace's best-selling "The Plot" won't be filmed until next spring, but already some major decisions about it have been reached. David Weisbart, who will produce it for 20th Century-Fox, is the source for this information.

The novel opens with a re-creation of President Kennedy's assassination. After much thought, Weisbart says, it is now "extremely doubtful" if this will be included in the film version. There would be difficulties in getting clearance from the Kennedy family and "I don't think it adds that much to the story."

One of the major characters in the book—an ex-president who is characterized by indecisiveness—will be virtually eliminated. "I don't think this is a good image to show the world," Weisbart says.

He estimated the movie will cost between $4 and $4.5 million.

"It's almost impossible to do a major picture at a major studio for much less these days," he says. "We had prepared 'Custer' and Fred Zinnemann was all set to direct—but the budget figured out at $18 million so we had to drop it. I'd still like to do it someday."

Weisbart produced "Valley of the Dolls," which will be released probably in December. He thinks Patty Duke will be the big surprise when that is shown—"She'll surprise a lot of people."

Abby Dalton, a veteran of two series (Hennessey and The Joey Bishop Show), is now doing a daytime game show (NBC's Hollywood Squares), and she finds that she gets more recognition from it than she ever did from her nighttime shows.

Daytime programs, like this one, are good for her career as a mother. Hollywood Squares tapes five shows in one day, which gives her the balance of the week for Matthew, 4, Kathleen, 2, and John, 1.

"I think I spend more time with my children," she says, "than most mothers because I have the luxury of a housekeeper."

She and her husband, Jack Smith, are not a part of the Hollywood scene. Far from it. "I read about it," Abby says, "and it seems like children's games—getting married one week and divorced the next. I don't know why they bother to sanctify those relationships with marriage. Why do they go through a holy ceremony just to continue doing what they were doing for a long time before?"

Abby prefers life around the swimming pool. She recently pulled Matthew out of the pool; he had panicked and got into a little trouble. She lectured him about the dangers of panicking and just then two-year-old Kathleen came by and said, "I have to go potty."

"Just remember," Matthew said to his sister, "don't panic."

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

THOSE RAUNCHY ROLLER-COASTER WAVES: Riding big "ironing boards" on curling, breaking waves off West or East Coast ocean beaches—surfing—is strictly youth sport. Till the last half-dozen years it was a swinging sport solely for guy and gal surf bums. Now its spectacular thrills have attracted almost all swimsuited youth. Two 19-year-olds hold the U.S. surfing lead, Atlantic and Pacific. Gary Propert, East Coast champ, just out of high school, fishes in $24,000 a year from boards sold in his name. . . . while Corky Carroll, who started surfing at seven and has ridden the Pacific big ones, tops all riders on the West Coast. Wave zooming is zooming. . . . surfers total about a million American guys and girls. . . . Add a million or two "beach bunnies"—girls who sleekly get into suits and wait. . . . not for a surfing wave but for their surfing guy. . . . on the beach. It's easy to tell a surfing girl from a beach bunny. . . . stare at her legs for those cherry to golf ball-sized knobs (calcium bunions) below her knee and on her foot top, earned by hours of kneeling and paddling on the board. These surfing girls tend to be robust pretty, and predictably blonde. . . . they ride a lighter, usually wider and shorter board, pick less fierce waves. . . . but show lots of grace and guts.

To learn surfing: Know how to handle yourself in ocean breakers. . . . first, body surf. Then, go to a beach with good conditions (not terrific—you can surf on waves as little as a foot high, though surfers call these "junks"). . . . Rent a board conservatively suited to your height and weight (those towering expert planks usually weigh 25 pounds, cost $175-$200), and get some expert guidance. . . . Finally, paddle out and do what most surfers do most—wait. When that right wave looms, paddle like mad, catch it, stand. . . . Adapt your body surfing techniques to the board. . . . so you're pushed down the beach side of the nearly breaking wave. . . . not back so far it leaves you, or forward so far you nosedive in a wipe-out. . . .

Twenty seconds is a super run on the East Coast. . . . huge Pacific rollers carry boards twice or triple that. . . . (danger to watch out for, always, is being klonked by the board). . . . Nowadays, surfing is worldwide, year-round. . . . follows the best waves and weather. . . . to Mexico, Hawaii, Australia, west and south Africa, France. . . . and the true, salt-soaked surfer's motto is—"Have board, will travel."

NEW MOUSE FOR THE HOUSE: Twenty 3-ounce cuties

arrived from Mongolia for laboratory experiments, two years ago. . . . now several hundred thousand have spilled around in the fastest growing pet boom in the land. Called gerbils (pronounced juhr-bills), they're really a coarse-furred mouse, but with a hairy tail. . . . Yet, when standing on their hind legs look astonishingly like tiny kangaroos. . . . Their price of $10 is now dropping with rapid mouse-family rate of replenishment. . . . Gerbils are delightfully tame, gentle, clean, odorless. . . . love to cuddle in your hands, jump around boxes, learn tricks. A mouse in the house girls can love—they're so affectionate.

HOW TO HIT AS A SINGER—ITALIAN STYLE: Last winter in her native Venice, a girl named Patti wanted to be Italy's hit young singer—and decided how to do it. Hopped a train to the Piper Club, mod-rock top spot in Rome. . . . and taxied straight in her pocket for luggage, plus $5 worth of lira. Once inside the club, she waited for the first music break, then bounced on stage and burst into a mouthful of tune. Instant success! Conversation stopped, the band picked up under her. . . . on the spot the club signed and headlined Patti. She's little, blonde, fair-skinned and eyed, chunky and very pretty. . . . Spunky, too—picked the name of Pravo (Patti Pravo), copying the Italian "bravo," and won't reveal her real identity. Smartly, she has now cut two records, both hits (the second, "Vecchio Mondo," will arrive in the U.S. in English soon). . . . and jumped her night club net from $8 to $800 per performance.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT?
Dear Helen: I have a friend who tells me things it's hard to believe. She says men not only stare, but stop and ogle her. She says she has caused accidents when drivers look at her instead of the road.

Every day she tells me some new fellow comes up and asks her for a date. She says she never accepts them or even talks to them. What does she have I haven't got?—ENVIOUS

Dear Envious: . . . Probably a lively imagination. Your friend is either a whale of a looker or a whale of a liar. —H.

Dear Helen: What do you think about a girl who sends you a 50-cent birthday card which she signs on a separate note saying, "Now you can use this again—I didn't put my name on the card." Chintzy?—AMAZED

Dear Amazed: No-thoughtful. This gal is giving you a gift you can use, not just a remembrance. —H.

Dear Helen: I have been getting calls from some girl every Saturday morning. She tells me exactly what my boy friend and I did the night before, like where we parked, etc., and what happened. I have no idea who she is.

Do you suppose she's a spy or is my boyfriend bragging? Should I accuse him of liping off, or quit answering the phone on Saturday morning?—BORN FREE

Dear B.F.: Quit PARKING! —H.

Dear Helen: Everytime I go out with my fiancee my parents make me bring along my little brother. He is seven and a pest.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

MEASURE

Here is my watch. If it is to be of value to me, it has to be a watch I can count on. When I look at its face, I must know beyond doubt, that it can be trusted. If I have to be forever checking it, it is of little use to me, and certainly it is not fulfilling the purpose for which it was created. Life too, is that way!

If a man is to be of value, he must be the kind of person that can be counted on. His face must radiate dependability. If those who live about you have to be forever checking on you... you are not fulfilling the purpose for which God created you. Now, Paul said, "those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do; and the God of peace shall be with you."

Help us to attend church worship every week and to draw near to Thee. May we gather in thoughts that stray and control feelings that may be troublesome. For sin give repentance, for sorrow give trust, for strife of passion and care grant rest. Through this timepiece illustration, may we be led to bring our lives to Thee, that we may test and measure them by thine unerring law.

You In The Church
The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.

Too often we are inclined to think that anybody who spends a dollar for advertising does it from a purely selfish standpoint. But here, public-spirited, God-worshiping people, are paying each week to insert in this paper a full page, from which they will draw no quick response nor prompt sale. These people are good and humble business men — We owe them our gratitude.

WIN AT BRIDGE

Old Bidding Trick Fools Opponents

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Thirty years ago one of the most popular fancy bids was to bid one of your worst major suit when your partner's opening minor suit bid was doubled by the next player.
You reserved this bid for a bad hand. There is no point confusing your partner when you have a good hand.

The bid has gone out of style. Opponents learned how to take care of it and partners didn't learn to watch for it.
East was an old-timer playing rubber bridge with a bunch of youngsters. East also knew that West was a conservative youngster and East decided to turn the clock back 35 years and try a 1932 psychic.

South really should have doubled one heart but South was after game and rubber.
South jumped to two spades.
East had a couple of uneasy moments while West thought but relaxed when West passed. North closed the bidding at four spades and West opened the deuce of hearts.

South knew what had happened to him when he saw five hearts in dummy, but

NORTH				5

North-South vulnerable
West	North	East	South
1 ♦	4 ♠	1 ♥	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	Pass
Opening lead—♥ 2

there was nothing he could do about getting out of spades into hearts.

He let the heart run around to his ten and played the three of spades.

West was a youngster and a conservative youngster but he was also a smart youngster. He stopped to think about his partner's heart bid.
Could East hold four hearts to the ace? Not a chance. If East did, he would have gone right up with the ace of hearts and played the deuce lead as a singleton.

Could East have four hearts? No, there were only three not in sight and South held the ace. Could East have held the ace. Could East have no more hearts? Quite likely!
West led the nine of hearts.
East ruffed, returned a diamond and set the hand with another ruff.

What do you do?

A—Jump to five clubs. You have the right cards for your partner.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do jump to five clubs and your partner bids five diamonds. What do you do now?

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Plastics Used in Dentures Can Irritate Some Mouths

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Dr. Lawrence: I hope you can help me. I've had dentures for two years and from the first they've burned my lips and gums and palate and caused them to swell. My dentist says he hasn't seen such a case in 35 years. What can I do?

Answer—Symptoms you describe are usually associated with allergy. Your tissues may be hypersensitive to plastic denture material. Burning, swelling, sometimes itching and redness of tissues that are in direct contact with dentures are typical allergic reactions.

Antihistamines can be used to control allergic symptoms, but the only real cure is to have new dentures made of a material to which, hopefully, you are not sensitive. Another type plastic material may solve your problem, and metal base dentures have also been successfully used.

Sometimes burning and redness of tissues underlying dentures, so called "denture sore mouth," are caused by infection. Its proper name is moniliasis and it's due to a specific organism which, when absorbed in to denture material, is just about impossible to get rid of without getting rid of the dentures.

First, infection must be cleared up and then new dentures made.

Dear Dr. Lawrence: Ever since I began to wear my lower partial denture my speech has changed. I make hissing sounds and don't clearly sound out endings of words.

Answer—Usually upper dentures are the troublesome ones in speech defects. The tongue must touch the palatal area just behind the upper front teeth in order to make certain sounds. If the palatal section of the denture is too thick, sounds are distorted.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Professional football's "Taxi Squad" got its name in the mid-1940s
when Arthur McBride, founder of the Cleveland Browns, discovered he had more good players than he was allowed under the rules of the game. According to The World Almanac, he placed the extra men on the payroll of a taxicab company he owned. They
but were nicknamed the
"Taxi Squad."

Yanks Golden Era Glows

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The New York Yankees, a team of the past, have not forgotten that era.

Yankee Stadium still is as much a tourist attraction as the Empire State Building or the Statue of Liberty.

The memories of Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Joe DiMaggio are still alive as far as baseball fans are concerned.

With this in mind, the Yankees constructed a novel link with the past—a telephonic Hall of Fame.

All you have to do is pick up a phone and you are immediately connected, via recording, with the Yankee stars talking about their greatest thrills in baseball.

Or, you can hear famous moments in Yankee history.

The most frequently "called" Yankee is Mickey Mantle. Mickey has two phones, one for his greatest thrill and the other for a description of his 500th home run: "Here's Mantle, the shift is on. Watch it. That Mantle is like a tiger in a cage. He's trying to wait, but he just can't."

"Three balls, two strikes, Mantle waits till Miller is ready. Here's the pay-off pitch by Miller to Mantle. Swung on. There she goes. Home run! Mickey Mantle has hit the 500th home run and the score at the end of seven complete innings, New York 6, Baltimore 4."

Mantle has 9,474 calls. Babe Ruth has 7,135.

The Ruth recording revives memories of a very sad moment in Yankee history. It was 1948 when Babe made his farewell to baseball during a special day held in his honor. Babe was a sick man and his voice was barely audible even over a public address system.

"... You know how bad my voice sounds, well it feels just as bad... There's been so many lovely things said about me and I'm glad that I've had the opportunity to thank everybody."

And there also is the oft-remembered day Lou Gehrig wept before 67,000, the day he, too, said goodbye to baseball.

"Today, I consider myself the luckiest man on the face of the earth. I might have been given a bad break, but I've got an awful lot to live for. Thank you."

Don Larsen's perfect game in the 1956 World Series is another favorite of the fans:

"Babe Pinelli motions for some more baseballs from the bat boy. I'll guarantee that nobody, but nobody has left this ball park. And if somebody did manage to leave early, man he's missing the greatest. Two strikes and a ball. Mitchell waiting, stands deep, feet close together. Larsen is ready, gets the sign. Two strikes, ball one, here comes the pitch. Strike three. A no-hitter, a perfect game for Don Larsen. Yogi Berra runs out there and leaps for Larsen, and he's cheered by his teammates. Listen to that crowd roar..."

And on it goes... Roger

Little Rock Takes State LL Title

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Editor

Led by a four run burst in the third inning, Little Rock pushed back Corning 4-0 to take the Arkansas Little League Championship, and Pine Bluff blasted Hope 8-0 in the consolation last week.

Little Rock scored all their four runs in one inning, and other than that the whole game was scoreless. Winning pitcher David Kilbury smothered Corning, firing a 5-hit shutout and fanning eight batters. But for a while it seemed as though no one would score.

After the first two innings were scoreless, Little Rock broke the skin the first time, scrambling over four runs on two hits. A two-run single by Robert Kilbury was probably the deciding factor of the ball game.

Corning threatened hard in the final three stanzas, but Kilbury just wanted his shutout a little too much. He got it. Loser Allen Young gave up only three hits, as Corning actually out-hit the state champs 5-3. But the statistics don't count. Just that final score.

Having no problems Pine Bluff breezed to the consolation title by throttling the Hope All-Stars 8-0. This writer, who picked the locals as very possibly the favorite, shall never predict the outcome of another ballgame.

It's really very hard to understand what really happened to the locals the past two evenings. The desire was there, but the Little Rock game seemed to drain Hope's morale. Hope never led through either game, and our heralded pitching fell through. Pitching was the deciding factor, as Little Rock's defense only allowed two runs, both to Hope.

Down 4-0 entering the fifth inning, the sledge hammer blow was struck, as Tracy Howard slammed a leadoff homer into the mass past the left field fence. Then three consecutive doubles, three more runs, and the game was as good as over.

Tournament director, James M. Hill, Jr., made the trophy presentation, fourth place to Hope, third to Pine Bluff, second to Corning, who gets my vote for the sportsmen of the tournament, and Little Rock, the new state champions. Special appreciation was given the Parks and Recreation crew and the Little League Auxiliary, without whose help the tournament, or for that matter, Little League baseball in Hope, would be virtually impossible.

With due thanks given and another athletic season gone by, this journalist pauses, patiently awaiting the arrival of football to the scene.

Roy Attaway's Outdoor Notebook

PORT ANGELES, Wash.—(NEA)—Steelhead fishing is a spiritual experience. There's no word or phrase that adequately describes it, but that's close enough.

Every time a steelhead strikes, you feel it deep in the marrow of your bones. The catch is, steelhead don't often strike.

John Westfall ("You couldn't drive me out of this country with a club") probably is one of the best steelhead fishermen on the Olympic Peninsula. John Westfall is also the first to admit that any day you get a strike is a good day. Great days, the kind you mark on the kitchen calendar and burn into your memory, are the days when you get strikes. Plural.

"I've known guys who've fished for steelhead for years, and never really had the thrill of playing one," John said. He slipped a blob of ripe, orange salmon eggs through a loop of the leader and threaded the tiny hook into the rubbery mass.

"Here," he said. "You take it. Throw it over next to that big flat rock, and then bring it back slowly to you."

We were standing on a high, rock ledge, about 30 feet above a deep pool on the Elwha River. Like some 50 other rivers in this beautiful country, the Elwha is glacier-fed, born in a huge, crunching mass of ice high in the Olympic range. It tumbles down madly through conifer-choked mountains until it empties into the Strait of Juan De Fuca.

"O.K.," I said, with a bravado that reveals basic insecurity, "this time we get a steelhead." Two nice Dolly Varden trout lay on the mossy rocks. For the first time in my life, I was sore that trout were biting.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The five-man boycott of the Cleveland Browns had a racial motivation, pure and simple.

It was a purposeful circumstance that John Wooten, Leroy Kelly, Mike Howell, John Brown and Sidney Williams—the men who sought redress for personal grievances against the Browns' management—banded together. They are all Negroes and active in the Negro Industrial and Economic Union. Wooten is the president.

Jimmy Brown, the retired fullback, has been the organizing and directing force for NIEU, and it was perfectly logical that he'd issue a statement from Hollywood outlining the individual arguments of the men concerned.

"All the facts in his statement," said Art Modell, the president of the Browns (and also of the National Football League), "are inaccurate." With that incisive comment, Modell demurred from being drawn into further debate with his ex-star and, I might add, ex-friend.

"I refuse once again," said Modell, "to fall prey to Hollywood ballyhoo." There remains a tinge of bitterness from Brown's retirement a year ago this summer—not so much the fact that Jimmy quit, because that was his prerogative, but how the rumors and then the actual announcement were nursed to exploit Brown's new career as an actor.

In the five-man boycott, Art is caught in the prejudicial position of being both the players' boss and the league president. The action of the players in banding together has explosive implications beyond the desire of a bunch of guys to get a better deal for themselves. If they remain adamant, it's difficult to see how the league or the commissioner can stay out of the debate.

First, professional football now inherits the issue of collective bargaining first proposed by Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale when they formed an entente to get better contracts from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"I don't think it was inspired by the Koufax-Drysdale thing," Modell argued. "There's only one man of outstanding potential in this group, and that is Leroy (Kelly). But I'll tell you its effect."

"It's horrendous for all sports."

Wooten, entering his ninth season of pro football, is already under contract to Cleveland. He's in the second year of a two-year pact. He used the five-man play as a wedge to reopen negotiations on his salary. In giving the 30-year-old veteran a two-year contract initially, the Browns gambled as much as he did.

Williams, a linebacker, wanted assurance he'd get a chance to start half the exhibition games.

"That," fumed Modell, "is like Koufax having it written into his contract that he has to start every fourth day." No one enlisted Dale Lindsey, a young linebacker who deserves the opportunity to play as much as Williams.

Over all the wrangling hangs the delicate insinuation that the Negro players have to hang together to make sure they get adequate compensation for their talents. "Historically," scoffed Modell, "they have been the highest paid group of football players, tracing back to Jimmy Brown."

In meeting the threat head-on, he laid down four points before he'd even entertain discussions: 1) Wooten's contract wouldn't be discussed—he was already legally under contract; 2) any discussion on Williams was to be fiscal—coaches alone determine when and where he plays; 3) each player would be dealt with individually and report to camp the same way after a contract was agreed to—they were already losing money at the rate of $100 a day for every day absent; 4) there would be no discussion at all about the demand that if one man was traded, all wanted to be traded.

Was Modell being arbitrary in laying down the ground rules?

"These aren't my rules," he said from the Browns' training camp in Hiram, Ohio. "There are 50 men here and a whole league elsewhere who adhere to them."

But in this unrelenting summer of 1967, living by the rules hasn't been in vogue.

Boss, You Can Fire Me For Saying This

While the FCC is berating television for its cigarette commercials, we wish it would look into another aspect of tv ads aimed not at corrupting the youth but at demoralizing the adult. In tv commercials, nothing good happens to anyone past the age of discretion. Life not only doesn't begin at 40, it ends at 25.

Watch the people in these ads for a while. Teen-agers invariably have great, glistening teeth. Adults have dentures and denture breath. Boys switch hair grease and girls are glad. Men don't have hair. If they do, it is full of dandruff. Boys douse themselves with shaving lotion and wait to beat off the women, like traps full of cheese. Older men are happy to find something that drains all eight sinuses.

Young people have fun. Older people have nagging headaches. Young people spend all night wolfing hamburgers at amusement parks or beach parties. Older people go to a nearby movie and have to leave because their stummock is killing them. Girls have yards of blonde hair full of body and boys nuzzle it. Wives have gray hair and their husbands won't take them dancing. Men work hard and get ahead, only to have some pimply assistant tell them they have bad breath.

The teen-age wife makes a cup of coffee and turns her husband into a sex maniac. The older wife washes, irons, mops floors and puts up with birds on the sink, and her husband comes home with a miserable headache and takes it out on her. Girls are always washing their hair. Wives are always washing dishes.

Teen-agers wear sneakers and sandals. Adults wear support hose. Teen-agers rub each other with suntan oil. Adults rub each other with liniment. Teen-agers spend a lot of time in boats, sports cars and swimming pools. Adults spend their time in doctors' offices and listening to tedious insurance peddlers. Young people romp through fields and sniff flowers. Adults get hay fever and sneeze. Young people are always at the end of a glorious evening. Adults are always at the end of their rope.

Life is fun, fun, fun for the young. They can laugh even with their mouths full of hair. About the only happy time for an adult is when he has an accident and the insurance company pays off. It isn't fair. Worse, we have a feeling that it's all too true. — Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal

Writes Why He Climbed Mountains

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — One climbed mountains "to look at the sky and the rock and the snow and the flowers."

"For the past 10 years my first love has been climbing," another wrote.

"I won't let life pass me by, and when my tide comes I will be ready to take it at the flood," wrote Stephen Taylor, 22, of Chicago.

Taylor's tide engulfed him on the icy slopes of Alaska's Mt. McKinley before he had a chance to conquer the 20,320-foot peak.

Two of his companions also are dead. Four others are missing, and probably lie buried, perhaps forever, under a 10-foot blanket of snow left by a two-day storm this week.

Taylor's body was found at a 17,900-foot camp where he had been forced to stay because of altitude sickness when the six others began their successful ascent July 18. Their radioed "all's well" from the summit was the last word heard from them.

The bodies of two of them, still unidentified, were found a few hundred feet from Taylor's on a ridge. All three will remain on the mountain since the terrain makes removal too hazardous.

In addition to Taylor the climbers were Jerry Clark, 31, Mark McLaughlin, 23, and John Russell, 22, all of Eugene, Ore. Henry Jones, 25, Lafayette, Ind., and Portland, Ore., Dennis Luchterhand, 23, S c a r s d a l e, N.Y., and Walter Taylor, 24, Lafayette, Ind.

The climbers, unknown to each other previously, exchanged letters which Russell put into a scrapbook.

Louisiana Broadcaster Dies in Crash

NEVADA, Mo. (UPI) — The bodies of Louisiana broadcasting executive Henry B. Clay and his wife, killed when their light plane exploded and crashed while en route to a Canadian fishing vacation, were to be flown to Shreveport today.

A Beechcraft Bonanza single-engine light plane Clay was flying disintegrated over rolling farmland in southwest Missouri shortly before sunset Thursday.

Charles Hanke, on whose farm the plane crashed, found the body of Clay, 48, immediately. The body of his wife, Mrs. Helen Ewing Clay, 44, was not found for an hour. It was 200 yards away on the other side of a hedgerow.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete but the Osborn Funeral Home in Shreveport was handling them and Ferry Funeral Home in Nevada made preparations for shipment of the bodies.

Clay was executive vice president of International Broadcasting Co. and general manager of radio station KWKH, Shreveport.

He was also a member of the board of directors and executive committee of the Times Publishing Co., Ltd., of Shreveport and the News-Star World Publishing Co. of Monroe, La., and president of the Henry Clay Real Estate Corp.

Wanted Man Is Captured

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Benny Robert Eaves of Alicia Lawrence County, wanted at Walnut Ridge on charges of burglary and grand larceny, was captured Thursday on Interstate 40 about one mile northwest of here.

The Lawrence County sheriff's office told the Pulaski County sheriff's office that Eaves might be in this area. Eaves eluded authorities twice after they went to a house to arrest him, but they tracked him down with a bloodhound.

Opposition to Increase in Taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — Bankers generally have applauded President Johnson's proposed tax hike but some businessmen were less enthusiastic. Man on the street reaction ranged from resigned acceptance to outright opposition.

Many persons suggested that cuts could be made in domestic spending to lessen the need for the full 10 per cent surcharge on corporate and personal income taxes that the President proposed Thursday.

"A prompt tax increase is clearly needed," said President Gabriel Hauge of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. in New York.

But Edmund F. Martin, chairman of Bethlehem Steel, said: "At a period when the economy actually is softening, we feel a tax increase would worsen the situation."

The president of the National Association of Manufacturers said the proposal recognized the nation's "grave fiscal situation" but added the hope that a strong effort would be made to reduce nondefense spending.

A random sampling of 35 persons in cities around the nation produced only three people who said without reservation that a tax hike was necessary and they favored the proposal.

Better than two-thirds of those interviewed were in general agreement with Frank Snyder, 50, a Seattle engineer who said: "If we need it, we need it. I guess. Somebody has to pay the bill. I hate taxes, but they're a necessary evil. We have to do it, but we don't have to like it."

ATA, AEA Near to a Merger

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The proposed merger of the Arkansas Education Association with the Arkansas (Negro) Teachers Association moved a step closer to reality Thursday.

T. E. Patterson, ATA executive secretary, and Forrest Rozzell, AEA executive secretary, said the boards of directors of the two organizations had approved a draft of a charter and bylaws.

The document now requires approval by the membership of both organizations.

A joint AEA-ATA committee has been working toward the merger since the fall of 1963. Patterson and Rozzell said members of the joint committee and the boards felt that it would "provide the best means for meeting the realities we face and accomplishing the objectives of the education profession in the state."

Christ Statue Towers Over Brazil City

By K. L. HUFF
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — For a quarter of a century, the Corcovado Christ statue has towered over Rio de Janeiro, its outstretched arms glistening in the sun by day and bathed in light at night.

By design, it is in the shape of a cross, symbolic of the faith of the world's largest Roman Catholic nation.

The name Corcovado comes from the hump-back shape of the mountain on which the statue stands, though religious significance has been attached to the area from earliest history.

The first explorers, for example, called Corcovado the "Pinnacle of Temptation," in reference to the Biblical description of the temptation of Christ.

After five years of construction, the Christ statue was dedicated in 1931. It cost the equivalent of $250,000 with the money raised through donations.

Corcovado stands 2,400 feet above Rio's shimmering white beaches and strikingly blue Guanabara Bay. The statue itself is 120 feet tall and 93 feet wide through the arms. Each arm weighs 80 tons and each hand 8 tons, contributing to the total weight of 1,145 tons.

Inside the chest of the hollow interior, a heart is carved in the reinforced gray concrete, and a 10-story wooden stairway winds up to the head. For annual cleanings, workmen can climb onto the shoulders from openings at the base of the neck.

A crown of thorns is formed by 56 lightning rods encircling the head. Lightning bolts have chipped the shoulders and arms and destroyed part of the right eyebrow.

Corcovado is reached by highway or by a cog railway, the first part of which was constructed in 1873 for Dom Pedro II, a Brazilian emperor.

Breakdown on Johnson's Tax Package

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here's a breakdown of the tax hike package sent to Congress Thursday by President Johnson:

Individual Income Taxes—A 10-per cent surcharge effective Oct. 1 of this year. This would mean a person who currently would pay $500 in income taxes would have to pay $550 over the course of a full year—or $512.50 this year, since the surcharge would be in effect only the final quarter. Unaffected would be some 16 million persons in the lowest income brackets.

Corporate Income Taxes—A 10-per cent surtax effective last July 1. Speed up corporate tax collections.

Automobile Taxes—Continue the 7 per cent manufacturer's excise tax on autos to July 1, 1969. It was scheduled to drop to 2 per cent next April 1 and to 1 per cent on Jan. 1, 1969. Under the proposal it wouldn't dip to 1 per cent until Jan. 1, 1970.

Telephone Excise Taxes—Postpone until July 1, 1969, the cut in telephone excise taxes from 10 per cent to 1 per cent. It was scheduled for April 1. Postpone for one year the scheduled elimination of the tax.

Insurance Firm Must Sell Holdings

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—An official of an insurance company ordered to divest itself of certain holdings said Friday that it would comply if there were no injury to the company.

A. James Linder, secretary and associate general counsel of the National Investors Life Insurance Co., said the firm had no quarrel with the order issued earlier in the day by state Insurance Commissioner John Norman Harkey.

"I feel sure that when the confusion that has been created at this particular time is settled, this will all be worked out, and the company will continue the fine growth it has made the past 10 years," he said.

"Certainly I know of no officer or director who has done anything wrong or anything that is not in the best interest of the company as to their best thinking and ability," Linder said.

Linder said Harkey had told the company "several times" that he had a buyer for the Maumelle Ordnance Works land that would make the firm a profit.

For Size This Fleet Is Most Powerful

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
CAN THO, Vietnam (AP) — They call it the muddy water navy. Pound-for-pound it is perhaps the most powerful fleet America ever had.

All the 31-foot river patrol boats have more weapons than the four-man crew can fire at one time.

"We like to sort of swap around," grinned Thomas Roberts, 19, an engine man from Sitka, Alaska. He can handle a machine gun, grenade launcher, M16 rifle or pistol.

The fiberglass boats started working major estuaries in the Mekong delta last year to drive off the Viet Cong who virtually controlled the rivers by night and terrorized most daytime traffic. Now 90 of the boats maintain 24-hour patrols of the Mekong, the Bassac and other major waterways.

In the delta they are apt to run into Communist fire from almost any shoreline. Recently Red Gunners wounded one entire crew with a recoilless rifle round. The Viet Cong also like to lure the boats close to river banks and rake them with pellets from claymore mines suspended in trees.

Under the circumstances, the crews tend to beef up the normal armament. When boat captain Norman Booker, 23, a shipfitter from National City, Calif., set out on his last patrol after a year's tour of duty his craft carried its normal firepower of three .50-caliber machine guns and an automatic grenade launcher. It was beefed up with 60 light machine guns, a light mortar and two hand-held grenade launchers. There, of course, added to individual weapons such as grenades, knives, M16 rifles and pistols.

All of this firepower has given the little PBRs—propelled by water jets up to 30 miles per hour—a large measure of control over rivers where the Viet Cong previously moved with relative ease.

They carry a small radar set and a secret electronic starlight telescope which magnifies available light and gives amazing nighttime visibility. Operating in pairs, crews cut engines at night and float downstream, scanning the river with radar and telescope until they catch a guerrilla band. Then they dash upon it at full speed with all guns ablaze.

The daytime patrols—when rivers are bursting with sampans traffic—have become the tedious major effort.

Thousands of peaceful-looking sampans are stopped daily. A South Vietnamese policeman checks identities and searches the sampans. When a sampan tries to evade such searching operations it generally turns out to be Viet Cong and frequently opens fire. Sometimes the guerrillas dive into the rivers and abandon their craft.

Though Uniforms May Differ the 'Enemy' Can Up Pressure Sometimes Be a Friend in Vietnam

At the beginning of the war when the country was first torn asunder with divisions of North and South, there was a great commotion in one family when the 15-year-old son announced he was going to join his two older brothers in the fight. His parents raised their voices in protest; in fact, all his relatives told him, "We need you, and you're just a boy."

They didn't realize it, but that just made him more determined to assert his manhood.

He decided it was best to bide his time a few weeks until his brothers had finished their training and came home on leave. This he did, but to his dismay the brothers tried to dissuade him also. Theirs was a farming family and the third son was needed at home to gather the crops. They told him. The young man knew he would have to make different plans.

The night after his brothers had ridden off in the morning thinking they had convinced the boy his place was at home, he crept into the barn, stole his father's best mule, and rode off in the direction his brothers had gone.

The war was getting bloodier and the casualty lists longer, so when a volunteer presented himself for service—though he was only 15—he was quickly accepted. He met the major requirement. He could shoot a gun.

Some time after his enlistment, he was wounded in battle—shot through the chest. He lay bleeding on the bank of a brook with his blood turning the water crimson. Surely he must be dying, he thought.

Just then he heard the sound of footsteps coming closer. "Was this a friend or a foe?" he wondered vaguely. To his surprise the one who approached turned out to be both.

He heard a voice directly above him say, "Well, I do declare. Just a boy!" Opening his eyes, the wounded soldier saw a big, rough-appearing man in a blue uniform looking down at him. And two big tears were rolling down the big man's cheeks.

Those tears told the boy a lot. This was a man he could trust. Weakly, he told the man in blue, "I'm going to die, but I have a ring, a watch, and a derringer that I want my mother to have. Would you try to get them to her?"

"I'll try. But what's your name?"

The answer came in the midst of the arrival of the hospital wagon, so it was barely audible. The boy was placed in the wagon and four other wounded soldiers were piled on top of him. All were taken to a hospital, and most of the rest of the story is lost.

This much we know. The boy,

Appointment of Justices Is Accepted

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP)—A recommendation that state Supreme Court justices be appointed rather than elected was accepted Thursday by the Arkansas Constitutional Revision Study Commission.

The Judicial Branch Committee of the commission recommended that the governor choose each judge from a list of those nominees submitted by a Supreme Court Nominating Commission.

The commission also accepted the suggestion that Circuit Courts have jurisdiction over matters in probate, chancery and law courts, leaving the power to designate geographical jurisdiction and supervision to the State Supreme Court.

The creation of a family court was approved in concept but was sent back to the committee for further study of the court's jurisdiction.

The committee also submitted a plan to have the governor fill vacancies in judicial circuits by the method for filling Supreme Court positions.

Other matters accepted by the commission included the creation of a Court of the Judiciary to serve as a watchdog on the state's judicial system.

by some miracle, lived and returned home to find the ring, the watch, and the derringer his mother's treasured keepsakes. He never knew who the "enemy" soldier was.

(In June 1936, a great, great niece, Myra Robertson Hamby, wrote of this as she still had the ring, a gutta-percha ring with the initials H. A. B. studied in gold on it—a tangible reminder of her ancestor, Hugh A. Blevins, Jr.)

Low Rates State Prison System

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Asst. Prison Supt. Thomas O. Murton said Thursday the Arkansas prison system was a product of 17th Century ideas and would be below zero on a scale of zero to 100.

"Arkansas would be minus 20," Murton said.

Murton said in an interview taped for showing on television Sunday that in the past the inmates at Tucker Prison Farm were "ruled through fear."

He said fear of administrative punishment has replaced the fear of physical punishment at Tucker.

Murton said any of his critics who don't think the prisoners respect him because he isn't tough with them should talk to the inmates.

Murton said he had broken the inmate power structure at Tucker by instituting a new bookkeeping system. He said the system replaces the scrip that had been used as money at Tucker.

Murton said that each barracks was furnished with a felt covered poker table when he arrived at Tucker. He said that the prisoners don't have anything to gamble with now except candy bars.

News Media Raps ABA Suggestion

HONOLULU (AP)—News media representatives opened fire today on recommendations by an American Bar Association study group that would limit reporting of crime news.

"The classic function of the press is to find out everything it can about government, about law enforcement," said J. Edward Murray of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

"That's what the free flow of news means, what the reporter can find out, not what the public servant wants to give him on a platter."

Murray, managing editor of the Arizona Republic, is chairman of the society's Freedom of Information and Press-Bar Committee.

He spoke out against the proposals in remarks prepared for a day-long hearing sponsored by the ABA's section on judicial administration.

"To begin, you will poison the stream of crime and police news by deliberately managing that news at its source," Murray said.

The ABA recommendations are the result of a 20-month study by 10 prominent judges and lawyers on the constitutional guarantees of free press and fair trial.

Unveiled last October by the panel headed by Justice Paul C. Reardon of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, they stirred immediate controversy within the law and journalism professions.

In the main, the Reardon report calls on lawyers and police to restrict their comments on pending criminal cases and to cut back on the release of information about them. The stated objective is to help assure fair trials for criminal defendants.

However, Murray told the ABA group: "We of the media contend that, if you adopt the Reardon sanctions, you will cripple the press as a watchdog of law enforcement, as the traditional enemy of secret arrest and the traditional friend of fair trial."

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. warplanes kept up heavy pressure on North Vietnam Friday, flying 145 missions after a record 197 strikes the previous day, and a main target was the Communist guns which were shooting at them.

Air Force F105 Thunderchief pilots reported they destroyed at least 17 antiaircraft gun emplacements around the air field and railroad yard at Kep, 38 miles northeast of Hanoi.

Other pilots flew through heavy antiaircraft fire and surface-to-air missiles to hit other military targets and fuel storage areas.

The Communist fire brought down a Navy Skyhawk and the pilot was missing. It was the 638th announced U.S. warplane loss over the North.

Ground fighting continued in one of its periodic lulls, but South Vietnamese military headquarters said three infantry sweeps in the Viet Cong-infested Mekong delta had accounted for a total of 469 enemy dead in nine days.

For the second time in 10 days, the Communists unleashed a mortar attack on the base camp of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division's 3rd Brigade at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of Saigon.

Violence on Racial Scene Has Eased

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Milwaukee's curfew was eased today and Providence, R.I.'s police chief said he thought racial violence in his city was "over for this year."

These developments reflected a night of calm in the nation Thursday that produced little more trouble than some isolated rock-throwing and a shooting incident.

Police in both Milwaukee and Providence still enforced nighttime curfews but said the curfew would be reinstated at midnight tonight instead of 9 p.m.

Providence Mayor Joseph A. Doorley Jr., said he would make day-to-day decisions on retaining a "selective" curfew in South Providence.

Shotgun fire, flashing from a car that police said contained white youths, hit three Negro teen-agers as they talked to Sheriff Vern Miller in Wichita, Kan. The youths were only slightly injured and police began a hunt for the gunmen.

Only in Wyandanch, N.Y., a predominantly Negro community on Long Island, were there continued problems. Police arrested nine youths when cars were hit with stones and bottles on a third night of scattered disturbances.

The Senate Judiciary Committee continued its investigation of racial violence after hearing a Nashville, Tenn., police captain say Office of Economic Opportunity funds were used to subsidize a school that teaches Negro children to hate whites. The OEO denied it had furnished money to the school.

In Milwaukee, where four persons died and 706 were arrested since rioting broke out Sunday, firemen dodged rocks as they worked to put out a blaze. But the situation was judged calm enough for 1,300 of 4,800 National Guardsmen in the city to be withdrawn.

Forrest City Plant Vote

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP) — A National Labor Relations Board hearing has been scheduled at Memphis next Thursday on a petition for a decertification election at the Warwick Electronics plant here.

Charlene Heath of Wynne, a member of Local 1106 of the International Union of Electrical and Radio Workers, filed the petition. It calls for an election in which employees of the company would decide whether to continue their affiliation with the union, have no union representation or choose another union.

The company employs about 1,400 persons in the manufacture of color television sets.
